After Mount Carmel

At the top of Mount Carmel, Elijah called the 850 prophets of Baal and Ashtoreth to a test. Elijah and these idolatrous prophets would each make an altar with a sacrifice. The God who sent fire to consume his altar would be the one true God. After the prophets of Baal called all day to their god and failed, Elijah prayed and the fire of heaven came from the Lord of the universe. His fire fell, the nation returned to God...for a time.

However, the next chapter finds Elijah running for his life, bitterly disappointed, in the absence of restoration of true worship, and emotionally exhausted.

Have you experienced something similar before?

Think back to the last mountaintop experience you had in your faith—a time when God seemed unmistakably real and your faith felt unwavering. How long did it take before you started to slide back into old habits and a spiritual malaise?

Remember that the God of the mountain, is also the God of the valley, where you will need Him most. Pray and He will respond, as He did before!
