Pastor's Comment

From the Garden of Eden to today, you and I were made for intimacy with our Maker. We were created in his image and likeness (Genesis 1:27) so we could know him and make him known to others.

This is the highest purpose in life. This is the calling Christians are to grasp with joy and share with passion. Loving God empowers us to love our neighbors; loving our neighbors positions us to experience God's love (Matthew 22:37-39).

When we settle for anything less, we miss authentic Christianity. And the world misses its opportunity to see the living, transforming Christ in us.

Knowing Christ and making him known is the "absolute purpose" for which our lives are intended. Our broken world desperately needs us to settle for nothing less.
